AI GOVERNANCE CHALLENGE

www.deata.com.au

Understand AI. Spot the risk. Know what to do.

A short, scenario-based course that helps employees, managers and business teams make sound decisions when using AI at work. Learners join Northstar Group, a fictional company, and work through ten workplace AI challenges, making a governance call each time and getting immediate feedback.

FIVE CHECKS BEFORE YOU USE AI

D Data: What information am I about to share? Recognise when a prompt, file or upload contains confidential, personal, client or commercially sensitive information before it leaves your hands.

E Environment: Is this the right tool for this work? Distinguish between approved workplace tools and public or personal AI services, and understand why the setting matters as much as the task.

A Access: What can this tool reach, and should it? Think carefully before granting an AI assistant access to email, files, calendars or business systems, and keep that access proportionate.

T Trust: Can I rely on what it produced? Treat AI output as a draft. Check facts, figures, sources and tone before it informs a decision or reaches a customer or colleague.

A Action: What should happen next? Know when to proceed, when to pause for human review, and when to raise a concern with your manager or governance team.

WHO IT IS FOR

Employees: Practical judgement for anyone using AI tools to draft, summarise, analyse or automate everyday work.

Managers: A shared language for conversations with teams about what good AI use looks like, and when to escalate.

Business teams: A consistent baseline across functions that handle client, financial, people or commercial information.

No technical background required.
